CLEANING TIP OF THE MONTH

How to Conquer the Thanksgiving Cleanup

The turkey was cooked to perfection. The table setting looked professional. And your guests complimented you every step of the way. There's only one problem. All this work has left quite a mess. So where do you begin? Follow these easy steps, and you're sure to be enjoying some down time before the night is through.

1. Include in your shopping list food storage containers, ziploc bags, sponges, dish detergent, trash bags, aluminum foil, cooking spray, and cooking bags.
2. What's That Smell?- If you haven't cleaned your refrigerator in a while, now would be a good time to take on that task.
3. Begin to Clean When You Begin to Cook.
4. If your guests are willing to help; by all means allow them.
5. Paper or Linen?- If you've chosen paper, the work is half done.
6. Leftovers- Using containers made by the same company is a great idea. They generally stack nicely together and will save you room in your refrigerator.
7. Remember the Less Fortunate- So much of what we cook during the holidays goes right into our trash cans. If you have a minute to make a call to your church or local food bank; they can usually find someone that needs help. It really makes all the hard work worth it.

MGCS News:

Do you currently recycle your paper products or shred waste? If not, you should. It might be more useful than you think.

Millennium would like to introduce our new product line of paper products by Golden Gate Paper. All of these products are recycled using paper waste from many of our own customers in the Western United States through the Round River Project.

The Round River Project™ relies on environmentally conscious consumers, retailers, public & private institutions and an established waste collection network in the North American Southwest to sustain a continuous flow. Paper recycled from homes, schools and office buildings is collected and brought to their facility everyday where using a specially designed system, they wash and process the fiber without using any chlorine or bleaching until it is clean and ready to be transformed into brand new brilliantly white and natural, 100% recycled, Enviro-Friendly™ bath tissue, towels, and napkins. Their products are then ready to flow back into your homes, retailers, schools and offices, completing the loop and keeping the Round River Project™ flowing. (All information on Golden Gate Paper and The Round River Project taken from their website)

For more information on Golden Gate Paper and The Round River Project please visit www.goldengatepaper.com. We encourage all of our customers to shred all of their used paper products and contribute to The Round River Project.
